5th Grade Learning Guide ELA
Note to Parents: The learning guides can be translated using your phone!

How to Translate the Learning Guides:

1. Download the Google Translate app
2. Tap "Camera"
3. Point your camera at the text you want to translate
4. Tap "Scan"
5. Tap “Select all”

How to Use This Learning Guide:

There are 3 core parts to this learning guide.

First: Parents/students are provided with the text/story that can be read.

- In grades levels K-2, the text is found at the end of the learning guide.
- In grades levels 3-5, the texts are found at the start of each lesson.

Next: Parents/students are provided with an overview of what will be learned and are provided supports to help with learning (vocabulary, questions, videos, websites).

- Vocabulary words in bold are the most important for understanding the text.

Finally: Parents/students are provided with the activities that can be completed using the text/story.

- Directions for the activities are provided and the directions for the choice board activities tell students how many tasks to complete.
- For choice boards, students should pick activities that interest them and that allow them to demonstrate what they have learned from the text/story.
- The Answer Key and Modifications Page are at the end of the Learning Guide to support your child.
- The Modifications Page includes Language Development resources for Newcomers.
Grade: 5  Subject: English Language Arts

Topic: African American Suffragists by Margaret Gushue and Learning to Read by Francis Ellen Watkins Harper

Access the text HERE and HERE or Embedded HERE

What Your Student is Learning:

Your student will read paired texts African American Suffragists and Learning to Read. While working with this text, your child will practice the following skills:

- Finding the main idea and supporting details in the text to describe the characters
- Building their vocabulary knowledge in context
- Writing a summary of their reading that states and supports a theme
- Compare and contrast text to gain a deeper understanding of the theme
- Use facts and details to write a biography

Translation, Definition, and Pronunciations

(resource: wordreference.com - The language is set to Spanish BUT can be changed to many different languages.)

- main idea (n.) - most important point about a part of a text or of a whole text
- detail (n.) - specific information from the text that supports an idea
- summary (n.) - a short explanation of a text in your own words
- theme (n.) - central message of a text
- fact (n.) - a true statement that can be supported by evidence
- compare (v.) - to analyze two things for their similarities, or what they have in common
- contrast (v.) - to analyze two things for their differences, or what they do not have in common
- biography (n.) - a life story written about a famous person
- predict (v.) - to use images, titles, and headings and your own personal experiences to imagine what will happen next

Background and Context for Parents and Guardians:

- In this unit, students read an informational text African American Suffragists and a poem Learning to Read. In both texts, African Americans are fighting injustices (right to vote and learning to read).
- They will be asked to cite evidence (details) to describe a story’s characters and their actions.
- They will be asked to compare and contrast information about a text presented in a different medium.
- They will also learn to use context clues to build their vocabulary around this topic.
Ways to support your student:

Translation, Definition, and Pronunciations (resource: wordreference.com - Use this site to better understand the vocabulary words below, especially the bolded words. For a full translation consider using translate.google.com)

- Word Study- Review the vocabulary words listed below with your child. Practice using these words when talking about the text.

This article explains and provides support on why background knowledge is key to student’s being able to read with comprehension.
NOTE: There is a parent/guardian-friendly answer key at the end of this packet that you can use to help your student
In the United States, women didn’t have the right to vote until the 19th amendment, which was passed in 1920. Until the law was passed, women fought tirelessly for the right to vote. These women were known as suffragists. In this informational text, Margaret Gushue discusses the African American suffragists who contributed to the fight for women's right to vote. As you read, take notes on how African American women were treated during the women’s suffrage movement.

Imagine being in class and your teacher asks a question to the whole room. You’re excited because you have the answer, and you cannot wait to share it. But the teacher will not call on you. The teacher doesn’t even seem to notice that you have your hand in the air, waiting to be called on. Your fellow students don’t seem to notice you either. No matter what you do, the teacher is not going to let you speak. Imagine how frustrating that would feel.

Being ignored in class is a little like what women faced before the passing of the 19th amendment. Before this amendment — no matter your age, race, or job — if you were a woman, you were not allowed to vote. This meant you had no say when it came to politics. You had no power to change things. If you tried to vote, you could be sent to jail!

Women had to fight to get the right to vote through marches and protests. Women’s suffrage, which means women’s right to vote, became a popular movement in the United States after the Civil War. The women who fought for these rights were known as suffragists. The larger movement ended in 1920 with the passing of the 19th amendment, which gave female U.S. citizens the right to vote.
Before the passing of this amendment, African American women wanted to join the movement for voting rights, but the white suffragists would not let them. White suffragists tried to distance themselves from the African American suffragists. White women believed they had a better chance on their own of convincing men to let them vote. This meant that not only were African American women denied rights by the government for being women but they were also ignored by white women because of the color of their skin. African American women responded to being ignored by forming their own groups in the fight to become equal citizens.

While there were many African American women who fought for women’s suffrage, there were a few that became famous for their work. Harriet Tubman, for instance, was quite frail by the time women’s suffrage became a popular issue, but she still gave speeches to crowds. Her message was that all people, regardless of gender or color, were equal and should be able to participate in politics. Harriet Tubman died before the 19th amendment was passed, but other African American women continued the fight, such as Sojourner Truth, Ida B. Wells, and Mary Church Terrell.

SOJOYERNER TRUTH

Sojourner Truth was born a slave but was freed at the age of 29, when New York ended slavery within the state in 1827. Once she was free, she traveled all over the United States, giving speeches about her life as a slave. Truth believed all people were equal, and her speeches helped others understand the struggles African Americans and women of all races faced. Her most famous speech is “Ain’t I A Woman,” which she gave at the 1851 Women’s Convention. In it, she highlighted the different ways African American women were treated compared to white women. While Sojourner Truth did not live to see women granted the right to vote, her speeches and writing inspired other African American activists.

IDA B. WELLS

Ida B. Wells was a writer inspired by the work of Sojourner Truth. Wells was never a slave, but she was still mistreated because of the color of her skin. Because of these experiences, she decided to become an activist who fought for equality for all people. At first, her work focused on equality for African Americans, but she later focused on women’s rights. She learned that many African American women did not have the resources to learn about politics, which made her work even harder to educate them. She started the Alpha Suffrage club, bringing African American suffragists together to become a more powerful group.

Ida B. Wells attended the National American Woman Suffrage Association parade in Washington D.C. in 1913. The white suffragists tried to make her and other African American women march at the back of the parade. Wells refused to participate until she was allowed to march alongside the white women. This story became widely told and drew attention to the struggles African American women faced within the women's suffrage movement.

MARY CHURCH TERRELL

Mary Church Terrell, like Ida B. Wells, became famous for her activism. She was born in 1863 to former slaves in Memphis, Tennessee. At a young age, she became aware of the treatment she received as both a woman and an African American. Terrell and Wells worked together multiple times in their lives to bring attention to the mistreatment of African Americans. Terrell wanted to be active in the women’s suffrage movement but was overlooked due to the color of her skin. As a result, she founded the National Association of Colored Women and became their first president.

Both Wells and Terrell became important members of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (or NAACP). The group played a key role in the fight against racial injustice after women received the right to vote.

Frances Ellen Watkins Harper (1825-1911) was the child of free African-American parents. She attended the Academy for Negro Youth until she was 13 years old. In her adult life, Harper helped slaves escape through the Underground Railroad (a network of routes and safe houses used by slaves in the 19th century) and wrote for anti-slavery newspapers. As you read, take notes on the obstacles the students face while learning to read.

Very soon the Yankee\'s teachers
Came down and set up school;
But, oh! how the Rebs\' did hate it,—
It was agin\' their rule.

Our masters always tried to hide
Book learning from our eyes;
Knowledge didn\'t agree with slavery—
\‘Twould make us all too wise.

But some of us would try to steal

A little from the book,
And put the words together,
And learn by hook or crook.

I remember Uncle Caldwell,
Who took pot-liquor fat

And greased the pages of his book,
And hid it in his hat.

And had his master ever seen
The leaves up on his head,
He’d have thought them greasy papers,

But nothing to be read.

And there was Mr. Turner’s Ben,
Who heard the children spell,
And picked the words right up by heart,
And learned to read ‘em well.

Well, the Northern folks kept sending
The Yankee teachers down;
And they stood right up and helped us,
Though Rebs did sneer and frown.

And, I longed to read my Bible,

For precious words it said;
But when I begun to learn it,
Folks just shook their heads,

And said there is no use trying,
Oh! Chloe, you’re too late;
But as I was rising sixty,
I had no time to wait.

So I got a pair of glasses,
And straight to work I went,
And never stopped till I could read

The hymns and Testament.³

Then I got a little cabin—
A place to call my own—
And I felt as independent
As the queen upon her throne.

Notes

1. "Yankees" are people from the northern Union states. During the Civil War, Union states fought against Confederate states.
2. "Rebs" is short for "rebels." The term refers to Confederate sympathizers, who, during the Civil War, fought to maintain Southern society (including slavery).
3. The Christian Bible is divided into two sections, the New and Old Testament.

African American women were not included in the organizations that were fighting for the right to vote. These women were excluded just because of the color of their skin. The author says they were “ignored by white women because of the color of their skin.” The women did not just sit there, they made groups to help fight for the African American’s women right to vote. They marched, and fought for everyone’s right to vote. The text says “African American women responded to being ignored by forming their own groups in the fight to become equal citizens.” They fought for their rights to vote and have the same rights as all women and men.

In the poem Learning to Read, the narrator feels “like a queen on her throne” after learning to read. What is something that makes you feel powerful?

I feel like a queen on a throne when I get to run. Running is an exercise that makes my body strong. Running keeps me healthy. I run almost every day. I like to run at the park so I can see people. I run fast! So fast that the wind feels like a tornado around my body. I wear my favorite sneakers. I listen to my favorite songs on my iPod. The songs are fast songs that are easy to dance to but they help me stay focused on running.
