Charles M. Brown Jr. Athletic Academic Scholarship

Background: The Charles M. Brown Jr. Athletic Academic Scholarship was established in 2011 by Dr. Marc Lamont Hill, a former student and athlete at "The George Washington Carver High School of Engineering and Science" in Philadelphia, PA. Dr. Hill is currently the host of BET news, a political contributor for CNN and professor of African-American studies at Morehouse College.

The scholarship was established in honor of Charles M. Brown Jr. Athletic Director, Health and Physical Education Instructor and Department Chair, Varsity Baseball Coach, and Varsity Basketball Coach at Carver H.S.E.S

Eligibility and Requirements:

A graduating 12th grader at Carver H.S.E.S who has been accepted to and will matriculate at a college or university the following school year;

One girl, and one boy;

Has excelled in sports and academics during their Carver H.S.E.S. career;

Has not received a full athletic or academic scholarship.

Amount up to $500.00 per student depending on funds available.

The scholarship funds will be applied to additional expenses a student will incur such as lab fees, books, and supplies. Funds will be paid directly to the school or university.

All donations are accepted. Checks should be made out to

"The Friends of G.W. Carver H.S.E.S."
