Statement from the School Reform Commission:

Under the leadership of Dr. Hite, The School District of Philadelphia (District) made budgetary gains in the 2014-15 school year. These included securing over $50 million in recurring revenue and positioning the District to weather six months without a state budget. While these achievements are significant, they do not alleviate the need for substantial additional resources for our schools. We remain grateful to Dr. Hite for his strong leadership in this difficult time and to the commitment and hard work of teachers, administrators, families, and students. Noting these circumstances, Dr. Hite has once again declined to be considered for the year-end performance compensation to which he is eligible by contract. On December 17, the School Reform Commission will consider amending Dr. Hite’s contract to eliminate this clause. Going forward, Dr. Hite would only receive pay increases at the same time and percentage as those given to teachers.
