Tune Up Tuesday Professional Development

Tune Up Tuesdays are a professional development opportunity open to all K-12 teachers. These sessions take place twice a month at two different locations to make it accessible for teachers throughout the city to attend. Tune Up Tuesday provides teachers with a menu of options, allowing them to self-select into the session that is most relevant to their growth. The content will remain the same at each location and is grounded in research and student-impact. The majority of time is spent on practice and application of a targeted skill or strategy (no more than two) to ensure that teachers leave confident in their ability implement within the next week.

The focus for Tune Up Tuesdays in 2017-2018 will be classroom management/student behavior, technology integration using Google Apps for Education (G Suite), effective core writing instruction, arts education, family and community engagement, and math instructional content. This work is in partnership with the Office of Educational Technology, the Office of Climate and Safety, Office of Prevention and Intervention, Office of Specialized Services, Office of Family and Community Engagement, and Office of Curriculum, Instruction, and Assessment to deliver this content.

Participants have the option to attend a session at one or both locations.
